

BUSINESS PERFORMANCE REPORTING 2020

Better Business Decisions through Improved Performance Reporting
21 - 22 September 2020 | Real-Time-Immersive-Virtual Training

The two-day workshop programme is intended to help you build a new type of business performance report – one that answers key business questions and keeps you in control during uncertain business times. It has never been more important for executives and managers to have access to timely information that addresses business issues. We can no longer run our companies with large spreadsheets or budget-based reporting. Instead we need reporting that provides insights into our business. Where are we on track – where are the problems emerging – are we executing our strategy and turnaround plans effectively?

Why This is a Must-Attend for 2020

Management teams often lack the business insights necessary to make the right decisions in a timely manner. This 2-day program provides you with the practical skills to design and build a new type of insightful business reporting, based around 'business questions' that address what management really needs to know

Nigel Penny, is an international strategy expert with over 30 years' experience of working with executive teams all across Asia. He has developed strategy and performance management approaches in financial services, food, manufacturing, retail sector among the many industries around the world. Nigel is a pragmatist. He is more focused on achieving result for his clients than promoting any one methodology. Consequently, delegates will get a balanced set of advice geared towards maximising their end business result.

Exclusively by:

